	How can it be reasonable? What is the maximum and minimum grade?
	I don't even know how the gradning is being done? And what are the basis of this grading?
	Quite subjective point. Probably, active participation in seminars is the main criteria?
	Then the question is how you measure the 'active participation'? If someone doesn't talk to much in every topic, doesn't mean that he/she is 'less active'
	Jari emphasized talking during the discussions and said that it's not good that some people do not talk at all
	We had few(two) meetings and few discussions on the group, some didn't partecipate at all.May be an indicator...
	--> yeah that's true but everyone was active in building up the last presentations discussion in class, Jari know how to grade himself! I think score here is for participation among our group work
